Présentation de l'éditeur

The shocking tale of Ronald Dominique, who raped and murdered at least 23 gay men between 1997 and 2006 in parishes outside New Orleans. Dominique's modus operandi was to pick up young men at gay bars and offer them money for sex. At his trailer home, he would tie up his victims and remove their clothes and shoes before raping and suffocating them. Dominique was only brought in for questioning after one of his would-be victims refused to be bound and escaped. Dominique, then known as the Shoeless Murderer, pleaded guilty and was given eight consecutive life sentences.
